The 'Bengal Renaissance' was the name given to this revolutionary awakening of the Indian mind. This book tells a story of this awakening. The dramatic personae were not all Bengalis or even all Indians but they were all of Bengal. But what connected them all was that they shared in the creation and formation, in one way or another, of a mentality which straddled two cultures, Western and Indian. This cross-cultural mentality, let us call it the Indo-Western mind, was the ultimate and supreme product of the Bengal Renaissance. Yet this mentality was as much the means to that awakening as its product. This is why the story told here turns its gaze again and again to the West. Without the West this awakening would not have happened. This site uses cookies to deliver our services, improve performance, for analytics, and (if not signed in) for advertising.
