The Disability Press

The Disability Press aims to provide an alternative outlet for work in the field of disability studies. The Disability Press draws inspiration from the work of all those countless disabled individuals and their allies who have, over the years, struggled to put this particular issue onto the political agenda. Its establishment is a testament to the growing recognition of 'disability' as an equal opportunities and human rights issue within the social sciences.

Funding for this volume has been provided by the Centre for Disability Studies. The editors also wish to record their thanks to the School of Sociology and Social Policy at the University of Leeds for its continuing support.

Acknowledgements

As the Editors of this volume, we are pleased to record our appreciation to the Economic and Social Research Council for a grant to help with the funding of a seminar series on 'Implementing the Social Model of Disability: from Theory to Practice' organised by the Centre for Disability Studies (CDS) at the University of Leeds.

Our thanks also to the participants at the first two seminars, and those presenting papers, who set the series off to such an excellent start.

Not least, we are very grateful to Marie Ross, who has contributed so much to the preparation of this volume for publication, including the compilation of the Index.

This attitude, which may be seen as stemming from a medical model and a subjective value system, can harm the self-esteem and social inclusion of those constantly subjected to it (e.g. being told they are not as good or valuable, in an overall and core sense, as others).
